PROFILE

Wai Wai Phoo Naing is an Assistant Researcher at the Myanmar Institute of Strategic and International Studies (MISIS). Her research interests focus on bilateral and multilateral relations, international relations theories, the history of war politics, and conflict management and resolution. She is particularly interested in exploring how international dynamics, power relations, and historical legacies shape modern diplomacy and peace processes.

Previously, she has contributed to several research projects, including participation in the ASEAN-IPR Programme on Women in Peace Processes, Five Principles of Peaceful Coexistence as Foundations for Global Peace and Growth, the Pathways for Strengthening Non-Traditional Security Cooperation among Lancang-Mekong Countries, and the Preparations of Memorandums of Understanding (MoUs).

She is currently engaged in ongoing projects: “Building Peace Using Myanmar’s Geopolitics and Geo-economics” and “Exchange of Perspectives between Myanmar and Egypt on the Development of Global South Cooperation”.

She holds a Bachelor of Arts in International Relations (Qualified) from the University of Yangon.
